Trio rescued from canal

In the Romsey Advertiser of 4 January, on page 8 under NEWS IN BRIEF, Brian and Annegret found the following article:

Three people were rescued by fire fighters after falling into a Hampshire canal.

Hampshire Fire and Rescue Service (HFRS) was called out after two women ended up in the water and a man made an unsuccessful attempt to get them out. It happened near Nelson Close, Romsey. An HFRS spokeswoman said the trio became stranded in ankle-deep water after the slippery bank prevented them from scrambling out.

Fire crews from Romsey and Redbridge rescued them using an extension ladder. The HFRS spokeswoman said the trio, who are believed to have been unharmed, declined the offer of medical help. It is not known what caused the two women to tumble into the water.

Thanks to David Doulton for the use of his projector and computer.

Angela Rose

Eric Lewis has given the following explanation of how he produced this image:

My entry was originally the result of a summer project set by the Fordingbridge Camera Club. The intention was to make a collage of images on a theme, in the style of a well known photographer by the name of Iain McGowan.

The images for my collage were mainly taken at the Black Country Living Museum. The finished collage could have been produced digitally as one image and then printed onto one sheet of paper but I decided to print 20 of the images at a ratio of 6:4 and one image in a ratio of 12:8 (this being the central image). All 21 images were then mounted onto one large mounting board and this was re-photographed for use as a digitally projected image.

Cotswold Canals

The Stroud Valleys Canal Company (SVCC) is the registered charity set up to look after the western section of the Cotswold Canals. It controls most of the canal from about 1km east of Saul Junction through to and including Brimscombe Port, about 2.5 miles east of Stroud.

SVCC have launched a new website <https://www.stroudvalleyscanal.co.uk> where all of the latest news and information about the canal can be found. SVCC will act as navigation authority for the canal and issues boat licenses, mooring and angling permits.

Putting the port back in Brimscombe

Below: Brimscombe Port CAD (computer-aided design) drawing of new port seen in the same general direction as above but from a different elevation.

Plans to reinstate the Thames & Severn Canal's former transshipment basin at Brimscombe Port as part of a regeneration scheme have gone on show – work could start in 2020 on creating the terminus of the first phase of reopening the Cotswold Canals.

Originally part of the 'Phase 1a' scheme to reopen the canals from Stonehouse through Stroud to Brimscombe but dropped following the 'credit crunch', the plans for the Port have been revived thanks to a £2m kickstart from the Government's Homes England body, matched by the same sum from Stroud District Council.

Before it was closed in the 1930s, filled in and used for light industry in the 1960s, the original basin would fit over 100 barges, and was used to transfer cargoes between shorter wider Severn trows and longer but narrower upper Thames barges. The reinstatement stops short of re-creating that amount of water space, but will include a basin with 26 moorings, plus an aqueduct over the River Frome, new footpath and road bridges, visitor moorings, a winding hole, and provision for continuing restoration up the Golden Valley. The development scheme will retain the historic Port Mill and Salt Store, demolish 1960s industrial units, and create 173 new homes plus waterside retail units and a community centre.

With the rest of Phase 1a now all but complete, and Lottery funding provisionally agreed for the Phase 1b connecting length to Saul Junction, boats from the rest of the network could cruise to the reinstated Port in just a few years' time.

Putting the pub back in Dauntsey

The canalside Peterborough Arms started life as a farmhouse, dating from the early 19th century, but became a pub in the 1920s when the farmer opened part of the house as a public house. It was a free house and a tied house at various times but closed its doors in 2013 for what was thought to be the last time.

However, the locals wanted their pub back...

The Wilts & Berks Canal Trust, with the backing of the local community, had the building declared an asset of community value. The Trust was able to raise the required amount with the assistance of their members, supporters and the local community. The Trust purchased the building from Wadworths in August 2014 - a closed pub, a Grade 2 building and in bad repair. Then began the arduous process of refurbishment.

Many, many hours of fund-raising and volunteer effort later, the refurbishment phase has been completed. Dauntsey wanted its pub back and the Canal Trust wanted a Canal Centre and Community Centre. On the 1st December 2018, four and a bit years after starting, that has been achieved. The Peterborough Arms, Dauntsey Lock, SN15 4HD is beside the B4069 between Swindon and Chippenham.

Flood scheme on track for 2019 start

OXFORD Flood Alleviation Scheme, a project to create a channel to reduce the risk of flooding from the River Thames, is still on track for work to begin this year - despite two obstacles.

The first of these has now been overcome, with the increased cost from £120 million to £150 million of the project - the largest of its kind currently in England - being covered by £10 million additional funding from Highways England through its Designated Environment Fund and additional Government flood-risk funding.

The second obstacle is objections so far from 55 sources. Compulsory Purchase Order notices have been put up around the area through which the channel will run and CPO letters sent out to landowners and others with an interest in land affected, permanently or temporarily, by the scheme.

This is a major issue with nearly 800 land plots attached. A resolution by negotiation is the preferred option.

The Environment Agency is leading the project, which is for a relief channel to run from the western outskirts of Oxford to Sandford Lock. It will take three to four years to build.

The application for planning permission was submitted in 2018 and the Environment Agency is expecting a final planning decision early in 2019.

A third issue to be resolved is the public concerns at the loss of some 2000 trees that will result. The Environment Agency is planning to mitigate this by planting replacement trees along the route as each stage of progress is completed.

In doing so it hopes to double the present tree coverage by planting more than 4000 standard trees and adding a further 15,000 smaller trees together with shrubs; the EA will select native species.

Towpath Talk - February 2019

Trust to begin major project

The Wey & Arun Canal Trust is set to embark on another major volunteer-led restoration project thanks to the acquisition of a 900 metre stretch of abandoned canal near Bramley in Surrey.

The Birtley Reach area of the canal is particularly picturesque thanks to its position on a slope between the Downs Link path above (which follows the route of the former Horsham-Guildford railway) and the Cranleigh Waters in the valley below. The Trust is planning to create a new circular canal-side walk linking to the Downs Link, providing an attractive amenity for locals and visitors.

The purchase has been made possible by the generosity of an overseas Trust member.

Bramley Link manager Philip Oliver said: "There is a lot of work to do, but when restored this area will undoubtedly be an asset for Bramley and for Surrey. We are grateful to the owners of Westland Farm for their support and foresight, and the Trust member who made the purchase possible.

"We look forward to giving the public access to this beautiful waterside path and to the restored canal itself, while also improving the environmental value of the land."

The Coal Canal Way

The Coal Canal Way is a series of walks which, when taken together, cover the entire length of the Northern Branch of the disused Somersetshire Coal Canal.

Paulton - Radford - Camerton - Dunkerton - Combe Hay - Midford - Tucking Mill - Monkton Combe - Brassknocker - Dundas

The walks are described in both directions for people who want a short exploration which returns to its starting point.

The individual short walks can be linked to those on adjacent pages to form a longer walk for those who prefer greater distances.

Each page includes a map at an appropriate scale for that section and a description of the interesting things to be seen on the walk, with a summary of their history.

The booklet can be bought from the Somersetshire Coal Canal Society's online shop at <https://sccs.onlineweb.shop> for £4.00 post free.

Alternatively, it can be downloaded from the Society's website at <http://www.coalcanal.org/books/CCW/ccw.php> to produce a copy via your own printer. A copy can even be read online at <http://www.coalcanal.org/features/CCWay/CCWScreen.php>
